The big ditching machine that begun work on the Locust creek drainage ditch several hundred yards below the railroad track two months ago is gradually eating its way up-stream and is now north of the wagon road. Travel west from Laclede must now detour to Linneus as the highway bridge is not yet in and there is no way of getting over the big ditch.

The Blade has a pair of jack-rabbit ears that measure 12 inches from tip to tip. They were sent in by S. M. Brown from Las Animas, Colo., where Mr. and Mrs. Brown have been visiting since leaving here. Mr. Brown says he is having a fine time hunting in the wilds of Colorado and would send some venison if the law allowed it. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are now in California for the winter.

The new form of ballot, the large amount of scratching done and the unusual number of amendments made a big job for the election judges and clerks Tuesday. Usually the returning board here is through by ten or eleven o'clock but it was past three Wednesday morning before the work was completed this year, notwithstanding the board was as efficient as any that ever had charge of the work here.

Now that corn gathering is on farmers are able to make something like an accurate estimate of the yield. H. C. Hanson has something over a hundred acres and he estimates it will make fifty bushels per acre. He has out eighty acres of wheat and reports a good stand and the entire acreage looking fine. And by the way Chris is figuring on farming on a larger scale than ever since the arrival of that fine boy at his home two weeks ago.

The November meeting of the city council was held Monday night with all members present. The resignation of J. T. Cushing as police judge was received and accepted and Mayor Barton appointed Judge O. F. Libby to the vacancy. W. S. Savage, appointed alderman from the east ward to take the place of P. F. Weaver, resigned, was present, qualified and acted with the board.
